International Obstetrics Meetings with clinical specialist faculties from Ireland & the UK

OBSTETRIC CARE IN 2008 - SKILLS/DRILLS TRAINING IN INTRAPARTUM EMERGENCIES

Date Tuesday 23rd September 2008
Venue Dept. of Obstetrics & Gynaecology
Cork University Maternity Hospital

A unique and exciting training day organised by Baby Lifeline in collaboration with the Dept. of Obstetrics & Gynaecology - Cork University Maternity Hospital.

Obstetric skills/drills training has developed in the UK over the last 10 years. Recent randomised clinical trials have confirmed the benefit to patients, with significant improvements in clinical outcomes for mothers and babies.

The programme for this training day has been produced by a team of experts from the UK and Southern Ireland, who have been involved with skills/drills training since its inception in the UK in 1996. Contributors from the ALSO, MOET and SAFE teams have worked closely with Baby Lifeline to ensure the day will provide plenty of 'hands on' training, as well as promoting discussion and the opportunity to discuss how to undertake this training in-house. This training day complements the lecture programme planned for Wednesday 24th September

PLEASE NOTE: to ensure plenty of interaction in the workstations, places for this exciting and innovative programme have been strictly limited to a maximum of 80.

OBSTETRIC CARE IN 2008 - CRITICAL ISSUES IN ANTENATAL AND INTRAPARTUM MANAGEMENT

Date Wednesday 24th September 2008
Venue Dept. of Obstetrics & Gynaecology
Cork University Maternity Hospital

Organised by Baby Lifeline in collaboration with Dept. of Obstetrics & Gynaecology - Cork University Maternity Hospital.

To complement the obstetric skills drills training day to be held on Tuesday 23rd September in Cork, the Baby Lifeline team has drawn together an international team of experts from Southern Ireland and the United Kingdom to give cutting edge lectures on critical areas of antenatal and intrapartum care.

The programme reflects the importance of multidisciplinary team-work on the delivery suite and will be of interest to obstetricians, anaesthetists, midwives & nurses, as well as those involved in critical care. We hope that both trainees and experienced clinicians, in all disciplines, will find the programme stimulating. Subjects will include: training in obstetric emergencies, liver disease in pregnancy and the effects of obesity in pregnancy & labour. Important findings from recently published reports will be presented (UKOSS and NICE), with critical reviews of controversial subjects in intrapartum care: multiple pregnancy, operative vaginal delivery and vaginal birth after Caesarean section (VBAC).

This is an exciting programme designed to promote thought and discussion
